ARMY CORRESPONDENCE. The Call to Arms—Preparations for Battle—Arrival of Artillery—The Kentucky Boys—Tom Marshall—A Pretty Scene—A Storm.

Harper's Ferry, Va., the "long roll"—that ominous precursor of battle and blood-was beat yesterday afternoon for the first time in this garrison. A courier arrived from the Point of Rocks informing Col. Jackson of the approach of a hostile force, and there ensued an instant commotion in the camp. There were hurrying to an fro of armed men-soldiers who had been lazily lounging about their quarters were immediately transformed into alert and erect troops. Not an idler was to be seen. From every point there gleamed the bright bayoncts and there were very few who did not respond promptly to roll call. The long line of soldiery with their gay uniforms and bright muskets presented a beautiful aparance, but in the back-ground there arose a gloomy picture of the fearful desolation that a single hour's conflict might create in these now stalwart ranks. At a few windows tearful women and children were visible, while others were fast hasten ing from town. But to me the most significant premonition of impending danger was the activity and haste with which our friend Dr. Forsyth made his prepara tions for what seemed to be a rapidly approaching scene of carnage. I called at his quarters for a moment before falling into ranks with my Minnie rifle, and found him arranging his instruments and preparing his lint and bandages with the charac teristic nonchalance of an experienced man slept on his arms, and renewed vigilance was observed in stationing the outposts. Fortunately the enemy tarried sev eral miles from us, and if they will only defer their coming a few days we will gladly welcome them with shot and shell .-Yesterday two heavy columbiads and a battery of twelve pounders, with several thousand stands of arms were received from Richmond. The place is daily being rendered more defensible, and all that we now require is time to complete our arrangements. Our force consists of only about 3,600 effective men, though we hear constantly of more reinforcements on their way hither. Still our little band will be able to fight the good fight of independence

The Kentucky Regiment has been disanded, and the companies of Captains Harvey, Lapaielle, Crossland and Bowman, form a Battalion under the command of Blanton Duncan as Lieut. Colonel. It is suppore I that an effective regiment will be raised by the union of several Baltimore companies. Captains Desha and Pope are acting independently, and have been formed into a seperate battalion, which will be hereafter increased to a full regimental

Hon. Thomas F. Marshall was a passenger on the train from Baltimore, Sunday afternoon. Some of our Kentucky boys catching a glimpse of his well known face at the car window, raised a huzza, which quickly spread through the crowd. The distinguished Captain could only bow his acknowledgements, and express his satisfection at seeing so many rebel troops.

Yesterday morning there was quite a lively time at the hotel, near the railway station. Several ladies from the Gulf States had arrived, who distributed among the soldiers portraits of Jeff. Davis, with boquets of fresh flowers. The fair women were cheered to the echo by the brave men, and Rev. Dr. Scott, late Chaplain at Fort Pickens, delivered a regular war speech. Other gentlemen spoke, and among them W. M. McConnell, of Capt. Crossland's company, for Old Kentucky. Last night we had thunder, lightning rain, and hail. This morning the clouds lower gloomily, but the birds are twittering in the trees near by as peacefully as if war with its raven wing did not brood over the land. We have mentioned the points to which the guns from Cincinnati were sent via Kentucky Central Railroad. About twenty-five hundred percussion muskets were sent to Maysville at the same time. HAMILTON GRAY, the Chairman of the "Union Democratic District Committee," received them at Cincinnati, and took charge of them to Maysville, where they were placed in the hands of WILLIAM H. Wadsworth, the Submission candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, and others for distribution among the friends of the perjured usurper at Washington. LEONIDAS METCALFE, DAVID BERRY, and others were ready on the morning of their arrival at Maysville to take charge of the

The enchanting "Alhambrn," made famous by the charming pen of Irving, failed to excel such scenes as we have here. Should such a picture be sadder than one you wish to contemplate, then, as the twilight steals into the deeper shades of night, turn your vision to another point. Go view a picture which, as yet, hangs suspended in undimmed loveliness, with no outline of sadness on its smiles. There, woman's voice makes night musical with its dulcet tones. Its faintest sounds go forth to meet the ear of night, as a lone spirit seeking the object of its dearest love. Then there are beautiful lawns and gardens, here said there, whose trees are love. Then there are beautiful lawns and gardens, here and there, whose trees are bathed in silvery light, and the perfume of a thousand flowers and the music of merry voices ringing out from brilliant parlors, all contribute to blend our senses with lelight.
The mind, exhausted with the cares of day, on such a night goes forth in quest of beauty and recreation. Some seek com-panionship in communing with absent panionship in communing with absent wives, children, or lovers, as the case may be. There are others who, having neither of these at home, float like waifs upon the stream of time, catching here and there at some sweet flower along its banks. How some sweet flower along its banks. How essential is it to our happiness here to have our affections riveted upon some cherished object. To him whose heart ever bears with it this picture of affection, it is to him a mirror in which all things are reflected in beauty, and through which he looks abroad upon the wide and illimitable fields of creation with an appreciative eye. His thoughts ascend above the sordid things of sense, and, joining in communications. things of sense, and, joining in commu-nion with the spirit of his love, he finds himself a better and a holier being. As this is a movement of grave importance, contemplating doubtless the suppression of the public sentiment and free action of the citizens of our State, by the extension of the same military despotism over them as that which is crushing down Missouri.

I place before the public the facts in the matter, as far as our city is concerned.

Late on Friday, Mr. Hiram Shaw, of this place, was surprized with a hasty and confidential note, informing him that "200 MUSKETS HAD BEEN SENT TO HIS CARE, AND WOULD ARRIVE IN LEXINGTON ABOUT TWO OR THREE O'CLOCK AT NIGHT; THAT HE WISHED HIM TO RECEIVE AND HOLD THEM UNTIL FURTHER INSTRUCCIONS."

(Signed,) GARRETT DAVIS. Ten boxes of arms arrived at the appointed hour. Mr. Shaw received them but, unwilling to be a party to this armed complicacy against his fellow-citizens, he handed them over at once to Dr. Dudley, Commander of the Lexington Home Guard. He made no secret of Mr. Davis' note, showing it to any friend who called to make inquiry. No further instructions had been received to noon on Saturday, thours it was the general understanding light of other facts of recent occurren unst not be too lightly considered.

First, the chief object of Garrett Davis risk to, and confidential interviews with President Lincoln, is explained. Mr. Da s may not intend so terrible a crime; but the policy which he is aiding and comrting succeeds, he promises to be to his other State what Judas Iscariot was to his Master.

Second. The policy of the so-called Union party in the Legislature, is unmasked. Their course with reference to making appropriations may now be explained. They have whittled and cut down the estimate of the course with the content of the course with the content of the course with the cou nates to one-tenth the amount first pro-osed; and no one will be surprised if they unally refuse to vote any appropriations whatever. And why? Because the arms thus purchased would be distributed without favor to any party, and thus place all upon an equality. But, by alliance and league with the Lincoln Government, they can arm the never of indiversals. ean arm the peace and justice party alone;

It is a movement unauthorized either by law or precedent. Garrett Davis has no more right to collect arms on the soil of Kentucky, than had John Brown on that of Virginia. The one is as lawless as the other. Other citizens of this State have been denied the right of purchasing arms on the other side of the Ohio; then why is Mr. Garrett Davis permitted to receive them from that quarter by the wholesale? The product of the collection names can be had; that I should by no means abandon my original idea of sub Kentucky, than had John Brown on that of Virginia. The one is as lawless as the other. Other citizens of this State have been denied the right of purchasing arms on the other side of the Ohio; then why is Mr. Garrett Davis permitted to receive them from that quarter by the wholesale? This privilege needs a solution. Did he pledge Mr. Lincoln to give him ald in his wicked and unholy crusade against the Southern States? Doubtless, this is a solution of the whole matter.

that a deep distrust of the loyalty of the State Guard had fixed itself very generally in the public mind. Whether that distrust is just or unjust, its existence is undeniable. If it is unjust, the officers and men composing the Guard should take prompt measures to remove it. They cannot responsibly question that there is abundant measures to remove it. They cannot reasonably question that there is abundant cause for it. We know nothing whatever of the political position of General Buckner, but we are assured that nearly the whole of the Guard are not only open, but zealous and active, Secessionists."

It is not a matter of surprise, when the best men amongst us are viewed with distrust, that the State Guard should not escape criticism, but I confess that it was with equal surprise and regret that I read your arraignment. An ordinary criminal might be deemed innocent until proved gailty; but, under your arraignment, the State Guard are required to prove their innocence by refuting the idle rumors of the day. in it, may interpose at least some measures for conciliation.

But the war spirit which has arisen in all the Northern States this side of the Rocky Mountains will prevail unchecked, in July, and Congress will act under its influence. A leading Administration per says that Congress, meeting on the 4th of July, ought to terminate the session on the 18th—that they are not called to enter into general legislation, but to supply the omissions in their legislation of last session. Money, men, and laws, for the punishment of treason, are to be called for. The report that the government has purchased a large supply of improved arms in Europe is fully confirmed. A portion of these have arrived in New York, and more, to an indefinite number, are expected. It is also expected that a large number of Minic rifles can be procured in Canada. I am unequal to such a task, and there-ore will not attempt it; but claim the right, s an officer of the State Guard, to reply to the insinuations, rather than to the harges which you have made against its embers. The Kentucky State Guard is made up

The Kentucky State Guard is made up of elements from all political parties in the State. The members sign an obligation to support the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Kentucky, and the officers take the ordinary oath of office. They do not constitute a political organization; they are the soldiers of the State. The partisan is lost in the sense of duty and obligation to the community. community.

My own staff will illustrate the composition of the State Guard. I do not know the political opinions of all of them, but almost every shade of political sentiment atmost every shade of political sentiment to be found in Kentucky is represented in some members of my staff. I do not con-sider them unfitted for discharging their duties as soldiers of the State, because they happen to differ in their preferences as to the true policy of the State. On the contrary, the people of Kentucky, instead of desiring the assimilation of the roliticontrary, the people of Kentucky, instead of desiring the assimilation of the political elements of the State into rival military organizations, for the destruction of each other, should prefer that the antagonistic elements should blend together in one immense State Guard to carry out, without any division of action, whatever policy may be adopted by the State.

The principle on which the State, Guard

The principle on which the State Guard The principle on which the State Guard is organized, I regard as diametrically opposed to that which is suggested in the following extract from the article in your columns: "Let brave, bold leaders assume the duty and responsibility of crganizing companies, battalions, regiments, upon their own authority; the necessary arms to be procured whenever and wherever they can be."

Such an organization as is there approach.

The influence of the officers of the State Guard has been exerted, and is still exerted, on the side of law and order, and the preservation of peace and good feeling between Kentucky and the neighboring States. It is not claiming too much for them to say that on more than one occasion, very recently, the State Guard has contributed, in a very decided way, to the preservation of peace on our border. It is organization it is also a conservative body, interposed between the extreme factions, obeying and enforcing, under the civil authorities, the laws of the State. If it is crushed, as many extreme men desire that it should be, it will remove the only barrier which now remains it the State to prevent a contest between the angry factions which are arraying themselves against each other. Whatever may be the individual opinions or expressions of feeling on the part of members of the State Guard, no one can point to any of its acts, as an organized body, which are disloyal to Kentucky.

I am surprised that you treat with such seriousness the incident which you relate of the parade in Louisville. I am credibly Guard has been exerted, and is still exerted, on the side of law and order, and the preservation of peace and good feeling between Kentucky and the neighboring States. It is not claiming too much for them to say that on more than one occasion year, recently, the State Guard has

I am surprised that you treat with such seriousness the incident which you relate of the parade in Louisville. I am credibly informed that the shouts to which you allude were called forth by shouts of an entirely different character; and that the songs which are pronounced "lisunion songs," were chiefly the national airs of the United States—all tending to prove the variety of elements which blend together for the public good in the State Guard. As a further evidence of this fact, on the very day when you penned the article in your journal, three companies of the State Guard, as we are informed by the press, were in Cincinnati, joining in the reception of Col. Andersoa. When the position of the State Guard, therefore, is so little understood, it is perhaps not surprising that your Frankfort correspondent should bring a charge that public arms were given to the Captain of a certain company because he was a Secessionist, at the very time the officer was bitterly complaining that I withheld the arms from opposite motives. But such is the necessary consequence of a faithful attempt to discharge a public duty.

that I withheld the arms from opposite motives. But such is the necessary consequence of a faithful attempt to discharge a public duty.

I do not know how correct may be the assurances you have received in reference to the political sentiments of officers of the State Guard. I am accustomed to look upon their qualities as gentlemen and as soldiers, and do not investigate their politics. I happen to know, however, that some of the ablest officers of the Guard are the strongest Union men. Whatever their political faith, there can be no doubt of their fidelity to Kentucky. If all her citizens prove as true to the State as the members of the State of the State as the members of the State as the large from without.

As to my own "political position," to which you allude, I nave but little to say. I have never offered myself for political favors, and am not likely to do so. It would, therefore, be little short of impertinence in me to thrust my views of political favors, and am not likely to do so. It would, therefore, be little short of impertinence in me to thrust my views of political favors and are not an entire the strongest the entire the political favors, and an entire the entire the strongest the entire the st will have no divisions at home and need fear no danger from without.

As to my own "political position," to which you allude, I nave but little to say. I have never offered myself for political favors, and am not likely to do so. It would, therefore, be little short of impertinence in me to thrust my views of politics before the public, who would be but little enlightened by them. But between the citizens of Kentucky and myself there is one bond which requires between us a full and unreserved explanation, and not only an explanation on my part, but a corresponding confidence on theirs. There is between us an official connection, resulting from my holding the office of Inspector General. The position imposes upon me the duty of serving them with fidelity; and it imposes upon them the correlative duty of sustaining me is the proper discharge of the duties of the office. A failure of duty on the part of either should result in severing the official relations existing between us. They have a right to know my views of my official duty in the position I hold, and I have a right to knew, in return, if my efforts to discharge that public duty are to be sustained by But between the citizens of Kentucky knew, in return, if my efforts to discharge that public duty are to be sustained by their confidence, or thwarted by groundless suspicions and partisan distrust. If they are unwilling to place confidence in a man who will not consent to guide his official conduct in accordance with the views of partisan and political clubs, I am equally unwilling to serve a people whose patriotism shall degenerate into faction, and whose energies, instead of being united in some decided policy in behalf of the State, shall be wasted in internecine strife.

I regard myself as a soldier of the State I consider that as long as I consent to hold a commission in her service, it is my duty to endeavor, in every lawful way, to carry out whatever policy the State may dictate. In doing so I have no right to consult, and will not consult, my individual preferences as to what that policy should be. If she should impose upon me duties which my judgment or conscience would not approve of, I will yield back to her all authority which she gave, and tell her to find some other instrument to execute her will. which she gave, and tell her to find some other instrument to execute her will.

I would also consider it my duty to retire from the service of the State if she imposed upon the force which I command duties which could not be fulfilled, because the means of executing them were withheld.—

In other words, self-respect and public duty alike compel me to refuse to be a willing instrument to bring dishonor upon the arms of Kentucky.

I am, very respectfully, Your obedient servant, S. B. BUCKNER,

Some few of the Union journals commend to the attention of the coming Congress the interests of peace, and this suggestion is promptly denounced as "next door to treason." There is not, however, the least foundation for any fear that the interests of peace will find a single advocate among the representatives from the Northern States, with the exception possibly of California. That State, remote from the scene of civil strife, and having no enmity to either of the parties engaged in it, may interpose at least some measures for conciliation.

No difficulty isund in obtaining seamen, but an effective ockade of two thousand miles of sea blockade of two thousand miles of sea coast cannot be maintained without a very large addition to the number of our vestels of war. The policy of withdrawing from foreign service all our squadrons for service on the coast will before long be a subject of complaint on the part of our commercial interests. We have immense flevis of merchantmen in the Mediterranean, in the China seas, in the North and South Pacific, in the British channel—every where, indeed, which are to be left, exposed to the privateering enterprise of the Confederate States, and it is not to be supposed that such an opportunity for making prizes will be neglected. It may be said that the privateers, if they get out, cannot is head into the very jaws of death to find prizes will be reglected. It may be said that the privateers, if they get out, cannot take their prizes into any foreign port. So much the worse; for, in that case, and especially if the privateersmen are subjected to death as pirates, they will plunder the vessels, and then, pirate-like, sink, burn and destroy them, with their passengers and crews. The horrors of this coming war are yet but faintly pictured to our view.

Know Nothingism-the proscription of itizens of foreign birth and of members of the Catholic Church—had its rise in the free States, over all of which it swept al nost without opposition.

In Virginia it received its first eheck. Virginia, the mother of States and states men, the mother of Kentucky, declared against these who proscribed foreign born citizens and Catholics on account of their birth-place or religion.

Almost all of the States now in the Southern Confederacy followed the example of Virginia.

Now, the Germans in St. Louis, in Cininnati, in New York, and throughout the North are most eager to fight by the side of those who would have driven them back to the "Faderland" against those who came to their rescue in the dark days of 1854 and

It is said many of the Germans of Louisville are ready to return their thanks to Virginia at the point of the bayonet-that they are ready to march under the command of NED BUNTLINE, the founder of the order, if it should be required of them against the Virginians under HENRY A. Wise, who first overthrew the "black knight.

1. With the most palpable and inexcusable unfairness, the Judge sets out with the declaration that the secession ordinance enacted by South Carolina has involved enacted by South Carolina has involved the country in, and by inference has caused, "every crime and calamity for which there is a name in any language." "Most lame and impotent conclusion." The moral evils, the manifold crimes so mournfully enumerated by the Judge, are not the legitimate products of secession, per se, but the ordinary accompaniments of war, however, at dby whomsoever instituted; and, in the present case, the unavoidable results of the unnessary, unnatural, and unautherized war inaugurated by the unscrupulous and shaneless despotism at Washington.

2. The Judge pronounces, with judicial emphasis, that the Constitution is not a compact between sovereign States. Let

THE RACE TO-DAY—THREY BEST IN FIVE.

The race to-day is three best in five,

The race to-day is three best in five,

ler, writing from St. Johns, N. F., under the favorite. The ladies will flock there in date of May 8, gives these particulars of a disgraceful election riots in the province for Mayor:
"In Harbor Grace the liberal mob, to the number of some thousands, marched through the town, destroying the houses and furniture of the Protestants, and best obliged to take relige in the garrison. The military were called out, but the magistrate was too cowardly to order the captain to fire, and the soldiers followed at the heels of the mob, unable to stir a fluger in defence of life or property. At length an order was given to fire, the guns were brought to Punch, and all other delicaces of the season in the restaurant line, which he is ready to sorve in both the Ladies' Saloon and the Gentlemen's Restaurant.

P. S.—The Ladies' Entrance is through the Confectionary Store.

Inng of the 20th inst., it was resolved to the spread to sure, the guns were brought to the value of expression to already in the field, to take immediate steps to bring them out.

We recommend our friends to held Districts of the present the confectionary Store. nd for the present the town is disfranchised.

I now come to the tragedy of the day.
In the town of Harbor Maine the candidates were all Catbolics, three of them members of the fermer Legislature, and one a new man. The late Attorney General, Mr. Hogsett, was the nominee of the Bishop. He formerly represented the District of Placentia, but his constituents refused to realect , but his constituents refused to re-elec m, so the Bishop, sent him to Harbo min, so the Bishop, sent him to Harbor Maine, instructing the resident priestto support him. He took with him agang of row-dies from St. Johns, determined by any means to secure his election. But the people were determined to support their former member and colleagues. Mr. Hogsett and his gang marched through Harbor Maine to a place called Cat's Cove where the insigang marched through Harbor Maine to a place called Cat's Cove, where the other party were in strong force, to intimidate them. On their way they were halled from the bushes along the roadside, and told to turn back; they refused, and a party concealed in the woods fired a blank volley at them; they still pressed on, however, when they were fired upon again in downright carnest. One man named Fury, fell dead, and seven or eight wounded, one of whom died next day. They were both men of family. The party then returned to Harbor Maine, and the election went forward. After the polling was over, the returning officer was compelled, on pain of death, by Hegsett's party, to declare him elected. The election, however, is void, a special commission having decaded that the other candidates had a majority. The Legislature meets on the 13th, and the occasion is look forward to with the deepest interest. It has been stated by a local parer that the rowdires will interiers with the
